Die Neue Nationalgalerie

2017, Director: Ina Weisse, 48 min, subtitled
* Screens with short film Jean Nouvel: Reflections

Stunningly filmed in black and white, this documentary chronicles the history and renovation of Berlin's Neue Nationalgalerie, the last building designed by Mies van der Rohe, widely considered one of the pioneers of modernist architecture.

Integral Man

2017, Director: Joseph Clement, 62 min

Jim Stewart set out to create one of the most renowned pieces of architecture in the US — and succeeded. A man of unparalleled ambition, discover the house developed by a modern day Renaissance Man.

Harry Seidler: Modernist

2016, Director: Daryl Dellora, 58 min

Harry Seidler is one of Australia's best-known architects. Not without controversy, his life is expressed through the eyes of those that knew him best. An exhilarating ride through the life and work of an extraordinary architect.

Samurai Architect: Tadao Ando

2015, Director: Mizuno Shigenori, 73 min, subtitled

Tadao Ando, internationally celebrated Japanese architect and Pritzker Prize winner, is known for his refined and minimalistic designs. Through this cinematic journey we also explore his creative process, and his sharp tongue and wicked sense of humour.

Antonio Lopez 1970: Sex, Fashion & Disco

2017, Director: James Crump, 95 min, contains some nudity

A Puerto Rican, raised in the Bronx, Antonio Lopez became the most dominant fashion illustrator of the late 1960s/70s. Witness Karl Lagerfeld, Jerry Hall and the Warhol superstars, with a soundtrack fresh from the disco floor.
