Add a little old world charm to your home with whimsical designs that hark back to simpler times. Choose from patterns reminiscent of 19th century newspapers, tapestry-style designs and vintage flower patterns and designs that nod to Victorian artist and textile designer, William Morris. If you own a more modern home, you can use nostalgic designs to soften your home's architecture and give it a sense of timelessness. Pair your wallpaper with warmed off whites and character neutrals. What was once chintz is the new chic – these designs comfort with their familiarity while opening our eyes to new possibilities.

Chintz patterns date back to the 1600s, originating from Calicut in India. Like many wallpaper designs, they had their origins as a textile and were originally made from glazed calico and often printed with large flower patterns. The designs became popular in Europe in the 17th century and were highly sought after in the court of Versailles. While the style has gone in and out of favour over the years, it is often revived as a key design trend.
