

RESENE / Colour trends

LEFT Wall in Resene Eighth Joss, floor in Resene Eighth Joss and Resene Doeskin, cabinet in Resene Dusted Blue and Resene White Linen and dining chairs in Resene Quarter Doeskin.

BELOW Enhance the checkered beachy trend by adding seafoam greens, kelpy blacks and driftwood greys.

Resene Tasman

Resene Eternity

Resene Midwinter Mist

Check it out

Interpret a timeless pattern in paint

As summer approaches, there's a pattern that many of us love – call it cottage style or picnic table chic but there's no denying the resurgence of gingham's popularity. True followers of the checkerboard trend might use a strict palette of black and white, or go pretty with pastel Resene colours but for a more sophisticated take, nothing beats duck egg blue and raffia-toned neutrals. These colours are, of course, a perfect reflection of our coastline and beaches, where golden sands and grasses contrast with the soft grey-blues of the ocean. Rather than use fabric to represent the checkered trend, try your hand at applying it in Resene paint, on something as small as a coaster or as large as the floor. Scale is important – paint bigger squares on larger surfaces and make the squares smaller as your paintable area shrinks.

See resene.co.nz/colorshops

Resene
Dusted Blue

Resene
White Linen

Resene
Doeskin

Resene

the paint the professionals use

Resene
Half Caraway

Resene
Longitude