Try soothing greens for a calmer mind

Today's interiors are not just about appearances. As our lives become busier and many of us find it hard to slow down, health and wellness are increasingly important. The elements in a room can be used to reduce stress and allow us to relax and recuperate – and that's particularly true with Resene paint colours. Take your cue from the outside world where soft greens are refreshing, nurturing, soothing and therapeutic. They can help balance our emotions, calm our senses, and also indicate new growth and rejuvenation. For those working from home, they provide a breezy space that's ideal to work in, with a clear mind ready to take on the day. Finish timber in soft Resene Colorwood stain wash and paint a whimsical bamboo design that brings a sense of movement to the room, then breathe...
