MAKING an ENTRANCE

Peter and Rosie Fastier are not afraid to experiment with colour and the front door of their New Plymouth bungalow is a perfect example. The door, which has previously been pink, oil-stained and a deeper red with a brown edge, is now painted vibrant Resene Pohutukawa. "We wanted to go red again even though dark green or light grey was suggested to go with the main house colour – Resene Black White weatherboards, with the porch deck painted in Resene Flaxpod [matched to Colorsteel Flaxpod]," Rosie says. "I grew up in a similar bungalow in the country and my mum always had a red front door; being Swiss, the red was a favourite for me." When the couple saw the first few paint strokes on the door, Rosie knew it was the one. "We feel our Resene Pohutukawa door has completed the look of our happy home."
