

Let's do lunch

... and make it a long one like we're summering in the Mediterranean at laden tables set up on the deck, in the backyard or at the beach.

Get the look

- When styling tablescapes like these, select a palette of three to five key colours to ensure a cohesive look you can roll out across everything from tablecloth to glassware to flowers.
- Position tall floral arrangements between place settings, so the conversation can flow effortlessly around them.
- If you prefer your dining table to be more pared back, arrange your food, drinks and decorations on a separate trestle table, as we've done overleaf. Consider your food to be decorative too — think exotic fruit, bright packaging and large platters that display a feast of colour.
- Wide, coloured stripes are an instant mood booster. We've added them to the hero element in this scene — a tablecloth that could double as a picnic blanket. Before you commit to painting an entire piece of material, use inexpensive Resene testpots to trial different colours on some smaller fabric swatches.

Go extra

- Sketch ideas for painterly placemat, coaster and vase designs on a piece of paper. Apply a base coat of Resene Waterborne Smooth Surface Sealer to your vases, then paint them, your placemats and coasters with two base coats of Resene Lustracryl tinted with your chosen colours — we used Resene Escapade, Resene Lemon Twist and Resene Cararra. To achieve a smooth finish on your placemats and coasters, use a roller. When dry, draw your designs in pencil over the top before using small brushes to colour them with tinted Resene Lustracryl — we used Resene Escapade, Resene Lemon Twist, Resene Sepia, Resene Stromboli, Resene Cararra, Resene Red Red Red and Resene Aviator.

Line it up

- Make this tablecloth by laying a piece of linen on a dropcloth. Mask a border by sticking two widths of 38mm painter's tape side by side around the edges, ensuring clean lines by pressing it down firmly. Use a ruler and pencil to create your stripes; the thicker they are, the quicker they'll be to paint. We stuck two lengths of 38mm painter's tape side by side, leaving 76mm gaps between each tape stripe that we then painted with Resene SpaceCote Low Sheen in Resene Pöhutukawa. Allow to dry, then remove the tape. >

Set the table

- To recreate this graphic trestle tabletop, take note of our design — it's dynamic, with lines and shapes that allow an interplay between our selected colours, yet uncomplicated to mask with painter's tape. We used a roller to paint the entire table with two coats of Resene Lustacryl tinted with Resene Cararra. Once dry, mask out your pattern before painting over the top with two coats of Resene Lustacryl tinted with Resene Aviator. Allow to dry, then remove the tape.

Set the scene

- Replicate this lime-wash wall effect with two base coats of Resene Spacecote Low Sheen tinted with Resene Longitude. When that's dry, switch from roller to a large brush to apply Resene FX Paint Effects Medium tinted with Resene Seachange in a criss-cross pattern, before using Stockinette cloth (available from Resene Colorshops) to immediately wipe it in a figure-eight motion. Work quickly across the wall, aiming for an irregular but uniform finish.
